and finishing in a southwester that had considerable strength, twenty-nine yachts sailed in the annual regatta of the Ori-enta Yacht Club of Mamaroneck on Long Island Sound yesterday. The race was the best held so far this season on the Sound. The competition in each class was keen and interesting, and owing to freshening breeze the finishes were

All the larger classes were sent over a 12½ mile triangle made up of a beat from the start off Delaney Point to a buoy off Matinicock Point. Then came moy off Matinicock Point. Then came a reach to a buoy off Execution Light, followed by a run home. Three of the Long Island Sound schooners made up the largest class. The division was won by E. P. Alker's Allure, which defeated Moira, the property of Clarkson Cowl, by 2 minutes and 57 seconds.

Lenn the Best 30-Footer.

The real fight around the triangle was seen in the thirty foot division of the New York Yacht Club. Ogden Reid's Lena and Minx, the property of T. S. Clarke, had a great scrap, the former finally winning by 54 seconds. Mizpah, a yacht that has not raced before this season, finished third. The craft is owned by D. Richardson. Two of the Larchmont Inter Club yachts also had a spirited fight. At the frish Whiff was 9 seconds ahead of Sirene. Only two of the Sonders came to the starting line. They also kept beam and beam for practically the whole course, the winner finally proving to be Mingo, which defeated Tern by 42 sec-starting line and all finished except Little Bear, the property of Allan Walker, secretary of the class. The winner was Altair, the property of Wilits and Stannard. The yacht defeated Hydra by 1 minute and 7 seconds over a six mile course. Saturn finished third.

One Design Craft Best.

The Beil Cats and the little one design yachts of the home club started together and sailed over the six mile course. The one design yachts did the better work, Thane covering the course 1:36:12, almost six minutes faster than Three Bells, winner among the cat boats. Yan defeated Gnat for the prize by 43 seconds. The latter yacht is owned and was sailed by Miss Mary Brooks, a yeawoman in the United States Navy. For the first time this year the first division of the handicap class filled. On both actual and corrected time the winner proved to be Skid II., the property of H. L. Curry. Record of McDermott HEN Walter C. Hagen of Oak-land Hills, Detroit, defeated M. J. Brady in the playoff of their tie for the open golf champion-ship of the United States at Brae Burn last Thursday he tied the record of J. J. McDermott, who was the first home bred professional to capture the championship twice. Hagen first won at Midlothian in 1914, when he was located at Rochester. He de-feated "Chick" Evans by a single stroke, their scores being 290 and 291.

The tie between Hagen and Brady marks the fourth in the open championship. Two of them were played at the Myopia Hunt Club and the third was at the Country Club of Brookline in 1913, when Oumlet, Vardon and Ray registered a three cornered tie.

Open championship reflections once the part of his nearest rival, particuagain! Probably few people other than golfers experienced any thrills the past week through the resumption of play for The crowd was the largest that has golfs highest honor. For a half mil-isited the track since 1907. It was such larger than the management exproportions was cast as the news was flashed over the wires from day to day of the fortunes or misfortunes attaching to the country's best golf players. Your ordinary golfer may not read the rules carefully enough or follow them religiously, but he does read eagerly the the part of his nearest rival, particularly as the breezes were beginning to rise. Then instead of saying to himself, I will go out and break the record of the course and leave these other chaps far behind, he must have reasoned with himself to play it safe all the way.

His drive to the first hole was very slack, as if he were trying to place the ball straight, but only three-quarters of his usual distance. A bad slice would have found disaster if it had not been for a kindly tree trunk which deflected the ball to the middle of the course. When things broke badly there was in religiously, but he does read eagerly the news of golf. He may not take great interest in his own club or district championships, but he does devour every account of the play for the title of golf king, and he further asserts that he never gets enough. This season after a lapse of three years the heightened interest showed plainly the power of the smouldering desire.

The actual play is not all; a golfer likes to read of the by products, so to speak, and at Brae Burn this year there were many such. The course likeli measured up well for the true test of a champion. Distance and demands for a when he finally did let out in desperation on the seventeenth hole Brady landed a drive 253 yards straight down the middle of the fairway to the green. He showed the truth of the old maxim to gold and for college.

champion. Distance and demands for a great variety of strokes alike were present while the weather conditions fortunately favored no single pair.

Its Wide Appeal.

One of the great attributes of the game of golf is its appeal to both young and old. In the gallery the past week at Brae Burn I saw men whose ages must have been mounting toward the four score who trudged bravely on in the wake of scores of schoolboys, who rushed madly from school the moment the chance presented itself. The players too showed the versatility of age. Here was a youth of 23, Hoffner, no

J., June 14.—Match play in the June tournament began on the Glen Ridge Country Club links tohere also was a former champion o other days and the Old World, Willie Park, courageous enough in heart to day. The scores: try his fortunes against the cream of this country's best. It will be recalled that Park was the open champion of Great Britain way back in 1887 and 1889 and that twelve years after that date he was tied for the honors. For the two years follow-ing the winning of the championship he met all comers for large purses and never met defeat. The noted Willie Fernie and J. H. Taylor fell before his skill. In vain did he challenge Harry Vardon to a home and home match, for the latter's friends advised Vardon not to play over the Musselburgh course where Park knew every twist and turn Park finally met Vardon away from home and was beaten. But now, more than thirty years later, we find him still the wizard with the putter but slowed up on account of the necessity for long carries both on the drive and the second shots. At that his total of 184 for the 35 holes was better than some of the younger pros.

The gallery was there in all its fickle-ness. Hoffner was accompanied by a goodly throng after his tying round, but his second place position at the end of the second day's play did not satisfy the onlookers. He went the last day from morn till night with never a wit-

One grou me, was that they had very tew choice tun'ties to watch a goifer whom they considered a true form player, and the Country Club to-day, 6 and 4. J pleasure in seeing the wonderful iron william I. Lewis and C. P. Eddy shots made them hang close. The iron was the medal play han shots made them hang close. The from meet in the other branches handicap shots were present, but so also was ningham won the medal play handicap the putt missing regime, which seems with 77-7, 70, Don D. Cook, 77-5, 72, to have returned to the amateur title finishing second.

It seemed a pity to see two fine show to the green go for naught because the ball was hit feebly with no confident air, such as was present at Merion. Unless this putting touch of firmness returns we may see a new amateur champion the coming fall. At that it was a splendid job to secure a place in the money, and as the only amateur Evans deserves the highest praise. What a rout it was for the amateurs who is the past have given the professionals something to worry about! Nine of these ten places in the prize list went to professionals, and that, as one said is the just proportion. The homebreds were supreme, and our judgment is that they will remain so for some time to come. This past week golfers as the brilliant Gilbert Nicholis and Jock Hutchison, the clever Bob H. V. Gaines, playing with C. T. Ozell.

Both of these pairs finished 1 down to

MacDonald and Louis Tellier, Pat Doyle and others failed to keep in the forefront of the field and come nearer to winning. The chief reason, I believe, is that the homebreds try hard all the time, having before them a goal and a prize which spurs them on to their finest efforts without caus-ing any mental anxiety, while the brilliant foreign players after one or two good rounds become unnecessarily worried at the approach of a slacking up in the game and therefore lose cor rol of the nerves.

the middle of the fairway to the green. He showed the truth of the old maxim in golf and for golfers:

"You cannot play safe in a medal round and win!"

Brady had his lesson in this at Buf-"You cannot play sold the first play sold and win!"

Brady had his lesson in this at Buffalo in 1912, when he led Jack McDermott three strokes on the last nine. He tried to play safe at the very first hole and took a 6. In the decisive match Hoffner generally had the advantage, though there was little to choose, going out. At the turn he stood 1 up on Grant, but promptly increased that to 2 up with a "bird" 4 at the long tenth. The Baia entry supplemented that by bringing off a long putt to win the eleventh in 4, thereby becoming 3 up.

Grant won the short twelfth in &. They halved the next in 4 and the four-teenth in 5, but another 4 for Grant at the fifteenth left him only one down. They got neat halves in 3 at the water hole, neither man being on the green from the tee. At the long seventeenth Grant missed a golden opportunity to square the match. His third shot left his ball not more than ten feet from the pin and he had two for the hole, but took three putts, so that a half in six resulted. day. The scores;
